Sophia Ang
Head, Talent Attraction and Workplace Futurisation, Maybank Group

As an alumnus to Taylor’s University, it’s been really fulfilling to be returning to the campus to engage lecturers and my fellow juniors despite graduating awhile back. My primary focus is exploring and innovating different ways to engage Taylor’s students, graduates and lecturers as part of Maybank’s extensive efforts in building and bridging the network between academia and industry. That includes being involved in the Business School’s Advisory Board, organising our signature international case competition (Maybank GO Ahead. Challenge), engagements & workshops and guest lecturing amongst many other engagements with Taylor’s.

The university has an outstanding Career Services team who are always very proactive in engaging students and employers both on and off-campus. This has been consistent with the Taylor’s University team that we have engaged with thus far.

Taylor’s graduates are highly agile and entrepreneurial and have definitely proven themselves to be on par or if not better against international graduates from our observations over various engagements such as MGAC.

Our experience with Taylor’s University over the last four years has been extremely positive. I personally enjoy working with them as they are very passionate, open and looking for creative ways of collaboration. Taylor’s graduates have been among the most sought after talent for us; not only for their strong technical knowledge but also for their go-getter attitude, very well-rounded skills and leadership skills.

The above comments are from our industry partners and students about our programmes at Taylor’s University.
PwC Malaysia recruits students from Taylor’s University, amongst others. We also work closely with the Taylor’s Career Services Hub.

Taylor’s Career Services team is proactive in finding out the students’ developmental needs. With this knowledge, they work with us on programmes that can help students close these gaps. The ‘Recruiters’ Cycle’ programme, for example, was where we got to share our insights to the final year students on what we look for in our candidates and in doing so, share with them tips on how to differentiate themselves. It’s not just a ‘one-size-fits-all’ approach as different campuses have different needs.

We can always depend on Taylor’s Career Services team to promote about our job vacancies and other updates. The most recent example is the ‘Trust Builder’s Challenge’, which is a campus challenge by PwC Malaysia. This year, we worked with the Career Services Team to promote about this. Currently, Taylor’s University has a team that successfully made it to the Finals.

The facilities in Taylor’s are advanced, creating a cozy environment and space that encourages learning. We enjoy visiting Taylor’s Lakeside Campus.

We believe that technical capabilities alone are not enough. Graduates who have joined us from Taylor’s would have excellent communication skills, are able to interact with people of different backgrounds as well as have the maturity to embrace diversity.

Taylor’s MBA provides me the opportunity to acquire new knowledge & skills relevant to the dynamic business world today. Most of the modules are taught by highly experienced academic experts who were able to share both academic knowledge, business practices & perspectives that contribute to a fruitful learning experience.

Within a very short period of time, the programme enabled me to explore various business modules which gave me different views & perspectives that can be applied directly to my current working environment.

Guidance and sharing sessions from working professionals enabled me to relate how theoretical knowledge is applied in a corporate environment.
